Office—No. 113 GOLD AVENUE.
Address, THOS. HUGHES, Publisher.
ALBUQUERQUE — JULY 21, 1894.

THE DISPATCH.

THE CITIZEN has been handicapped ever since it was first started by a lack of telegraphic dispatches. Last November a short report was secured from the United Press, but the Associated Press was arrogantly claimed by the Democrat. Today it is with considerable gratification that we can announce that THE CITIZEN has secured the full Associated Press dispatches, and the service is the best telegraphic report published of any paper in the southwest.

The office has been completely refitted during the last two months, and an outlay of several thousand dollars has been made. The news and job rooms are neat, well supplied with new type, and everything is neat as varnish and paint can make it. A gas engine has been put in which turns out the papers at the rate of twelve hundred an hour. The business office, mailing room, in fact every department of the paper is supplied with every facility for the rapid and accurate transaction of business, and the price of the paper will be kept at $6 per year and 15 cents a week when delivered by carrier. All the other dailies in New Mexico are $10 a year by mail and 25 cents a week by carrier. Thus it can be clearly seen by any one that THE CITIZEN is printing the best paper in the territory at only a little over one half the price charged by its competitors. When it is taken into consideration that it costs more to print a daily paper in New Mexico than in the eastern states the low price of THE CITIZEN and its excellence should commend it to all.

ANOTHER TARPON TALK.

How a Green Hand Caught His First Big Fish.

"Princes, dukes and lords," says one man who is "on record" for a 170-pounder, six feet five inches long, to a Chicago Times writer, cross the ocean and fish for days and weeks in the boiling sun in the hope of catching tarpon, and yet when I landed my first big fish I felt as if I had done the work of three day laborers.

"I have come to the conclusion that as a school for ex-communicating tarpon-fishing presents an extraordinary department for training. So many things happen and so many big fish get away that a gentleman who follows this business soon gets very profane in giving reasons why he did not catch fish.

"Before 7 o'clock we were all out in the river with our guides, in small boats, ready for the sport of the day. I had hardly been well settled in my boat before I saw the water, and coming out, splashing, I saw a fish, shining as burnished silver, spring into the air six or eight feet, shaking his head and showing his red gills in the most vicious and angry way. My guide yelled out with a voice which could be heard a mile 'Tarpon! tarpon!' but when I saw this fish at the other end of the line jumping out of the water and splashing around I concluded that there was trouble ahead for me and that the fish was a bigger man than I was, and that I had undertaken a tremendous job to get him into the boat.

"As the commander in chief of the party had told my guide that I knew nothing and was green enough for the Fort Myers cure to eat when it came to fishing I thought it was best to let the guide handle the fish awhile until, in the language of the streets, I might catch on.

"I soon discovered that notwithstanding Col. Young's orations and speeches on the subject of tarpon fishing, it was not such a big job after all. In about eighteen minutes after a hard fight, I landed my first tarpon and had him in the boat. My tarpon was touched with a sense of pity as I recalled what a brave and gallant fight the fish had made for life, and how useless the sacrifice of so beautiful a thing to gratify my ambition to be known as a great fisherman. He looked up at me out of his meek, gentle, tender eyes with a reproachful glance that not only brought sorrow, but shame for having so needlessly sacrificed so beautiful a living thing, but, like a tiger, having tasted blood, I wanted more, and I caught another fish weighing 166 pounds, and then two more, and now I am registered as a taker of tarpon."

A Hair-Breadth Escape.
"I served all through the late civil war," remarked Jonas Felt, of Nashua, N. H., "and saw a good many narrow escapes from death. About the closest shave to being killed I ever saw was this: One day a sick soldier was lying in a tent with his knapsack for a pillow. He was supposed to be out of harm's way, but a solid shot came flying through the air, struck the knapsack and carried it clean away. The only inconvenience to the invalid was the loss of his pillow and the sudden letting down of his head. As the knapsack was scarcely thicker than the missile, it might be called literally a hair-breadth escape."

MOVE DISAPPROVED.

Citizens Do Not Favor Moving Firemen's Headquarters.

CONSERVATIVE OPINIONS.

There has been so much talk among our citizens and firemen, since the city council passed the Perfecto Amijo building, located on Tijeras avenue between First and Second streets for city purposes, and intends to move the fire department, or several companies of the department to the new quarters, that the reporter of THE CITIZEN this morning casually met the gentlemen mentioned and obtained their views on the subject, which are given briefly in the subjoined paragraphs:

Dr. Grant Burgess—Think the move a foolish one. The new location is entirely away from the central and thickly settled portion of the city.

George H. Moore—The location is not a proper one for the fire companies, but, believe, for office and jail purposes, much better than present.

Ivan Grunfeldt—The senior member of the store is away, but I think the council better let the companies remain where they are.

F. Frank—I don't think it a good move. If the city owned the property I would favor the move, but I object to renting and improving other people's property on short leases.

E. L. Washburn—I think they are handily located now, and could not be improved on. Any move might have a tendency to cripple the efficiency of the department.

Simon Stern—I don't think the council would do a wise act in the removal of any of the companies to the new building. I believe that such matters should be left to the fire department, when the members are all volunteer and give their services free. I favor having the hose companies where they are—on each side of Railroad avenue.

Judge Lee—Don't see any particular reason for moving to the new building, as a matter of economy or convenience.

B. S. Reley—Considering where most of the fire boys reside and considering the portion of the city where the greatest danger from fire exists, there can be no question but the present locations are the best. As to the expediency of any change I do not care to state, as the city's interests with reference to possible liabilities created by the city council itself is a matter for the council to consider.

John A. Lee—I think the council should let well enough alone. The whole scheme would cost and involve an extra indebtedness to the city.

W. T. Trimble—Have not given the matter much thought, but think the fire boys, as they are volunteers, should be considered. They are familiar with their present locations and are not hampered in leaving their quarters in case of fire.

J. R. Amijo—Taking into consideration the business portion of the city, the present locations of the fire companies are decidedly superior to any present move contemplated by the council.

Deacon Sanford—I have only a few of the world's goods, but I believe the firemen could not be better situated than now.

Several other gentlemen were seen, but they objected to the use of their names. All of them, however, disapproved of any move so far as the fire department is concerned. One gentleman remarked that he thought the council, if they intend to take action in the matter, should not move one or two companies to the new building, but the entire department, then all companies would be on an equal footing in reaching fires. Several spoke to said they could not see how the firemen—a majority residing several squares from the new building—could make the long run after their carts and then do effective work at fires.

The Removal Question.

The committee appointed by the chief of the fire department to meet and confer with Alderman Brockmeier, of the council fire committee, met at the Ferguson Hook and Ladder company quarters last evening, but the alderman could not attend. The committee then discussed the removal question and finally agreed to present to the council next Monday night a number of reasons why the companies should remain in their present quarters. Albuquerque now enjoys the distinction of having one of the best and most efficient volunteer fire department in the United States, so acknowledged by the fire underwriters, and it would be an unwise, impolitic move on the part of the council to do anything that would have a tendency to cripple the efficiency of our present fire fighters. Every company is centrally located, and can get to fires with remarkable rapidity.

Up from Hillsboro.

W. S. Hopewell, the Hillsboro member of the Territorial Cattle Sanitary board and one of the successful cattle raisers and mine operators of Sierra county, came up to the city last night, and left this morning for Denver. Mr. Hopewell was seen for a moment at the depot, and after stating that his section of southern New Mexico had been blessed by several good rains the past few days, ordered THE CITIZEN mailed to his address at Hillsboro. He stated that he wanted to read the news of New Mexico and Arizona, in fact from all quarters of the country, and came to the conclusion that his desire would only be satisfied by his subscribing for THE CITIZEN. Mr. Hopewell expects to return from Denver inside of a week.

Remuneration Explored.

Despatches were received from Denver yesterday afternoon stating that what was supposed to be a "gold brick" forwarded by the First National bank of this city to the Denver branch mint and valued at $6,000, had turned out to be copper. At first it looked as though there were a big sensation on and somebody had been victimized, but an investigation of the affair showed that there was "cash" in it. A couple of citizens, in delving among the ruins of an old pueblo church, found a big "chunk" of metal, and supposing it to be gold, took it to the bank and had it forwarded to the mint, where all their dreams of wealth were ruthlessly dispelled. The supposed treasure was probably a part of what had centuries ago done service as a church bell. But the owners were rich in their minds for a few days and are now no poorer than they were previous to their find, except to the amount paid for express charges.

H. E. Fox, the jeweler, and wife, accompanied by H. E. Fox, Jr., and Miss Dixon, left this morning for Glorieta, and from there will go into camp on the Pecos. As soon as the folks are settled in camp, the jeweler will return to his business here.

Mrs. Benjamin and son, Charley, who have been at the James hot springs for the past few weeks, returned to the city late this afternoon. They came back feeling in excellent health, and Mrs. Benjamin is full of praise about the famous mountain resort.

Mrs. H. V. Harris, who, with the children, are sojourning at the James hot springs, writes to Mr. Harris that she and the children are enjoying good health and having a magnificent time. They will remain at the springs until about the 1st of September.

Walter C. Hadley and wife, who have been sojourning at Santa Monica, Cal., returned home this morning. They went to California for health, and THE CITIZEN is pleased to say that they return home much improved. Mr. Hadley called at this office this afternoon, and stated that they are at home to stay awhile, both feeling hearty and good in health.

Fred Douglas, formerly superintendent of the Crescent Coal company mines at Gallup, now a gold hunter out in the Big Bad district near Prescott, came in from the west this morning. He has samples of ore from several claims in the above district he is interested in, and from all appearances the samples carry a good per cent of gold. Mrs. Douglas is here, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Sam White.

C. C. Apple, familiarly called "Dutch" and a very active member of the American Railway Union, left this morning for the City of Mexico. Half a dozen local Union men were at the depot when the train pulled out, and as "Dutch" was on the platform of a day coach, not a Pullman, he waved his hand and said: "I will soon return and will have money on which to continue the strike. Our cause is a just one."

Judge Hancock has returned from Bland, Ochiti mining district. He states that J. W. Palmer, late of this city, has his hotel running and is doing a good business, and that Messrs. Collington & Pich are doing a land office trade in the general merchandise traffic. The judge further stated that the machinery of the mill at Allerton started up yesterday, and will be running with ore on Monday next. Everything and everybody seems to be thriving in the district, especially at Bland.

COCHITI GOLD!

It will Make Ours, and Here is Coming.

Editor Citizen.
Bland, June 19.—While the strike, which has just passed into history, slightly clogged the wheels of this region, retarding shipments of ore, shutting out material badly needed, etc., that great magnet which rules the world, gold, still lures our sturdy miners on, and each day brings renewed and increasing rewards. From every gulch and hillside come good reports of ore strikes and better ore. It is safe to say that no mining district in the United States, of its age, has promise of so rich a future. No new district was ever opened in times when such dire distress and financial panic had laid their paralyzing hands upon the commercial arteries of our country. Notwithstanding the difficulties under which this young section is laboring in these matters, every day the hills render up new evidence of great mineral wealth, development work increases, and dump piles grow wealthier. When the Allerton mills start up, bullion bars will roll out and turn new life back into the mines.

Development work on Gold Hill has revealed some wonderfully rich ore on a number of claims. On the Little Mollie old and rather extensive workings show that many years ago this hill was worked for the free gold which the ore carries. Large trees have grown up on the dump pile and in the crude drift made. The old pueblo ruins near Allerton disclose a furnace surrounded by slag, which confirms the already well established fact that the race whose history is now lost were miners and workers in the rich mines of this district.

One from the waste dump of the Crown Point recently assayed $30 per ton. The smaller return from the last carload of ore from this mine showed a value of $127.30 per ton—$78 gold, about $50 silver; and this ore from a depth of twenty-five feet.

The free gold properties in Colla canon are improving with development and investigation; the best assay recently returned being on the Albemarle—$440 in gold.

Parties in interest having a dispute over certain lines of the Monte Carlo, Allerton and Golden Era, on Gold Hill, are talking of submitting to arbitration.

Quite a number of wagons are hauling ore to the Allerton mills, which are now steaming up to extract bullion, and will be open for business next Monday.

Over in Bear canon, about two miles west of La Jara, Mr. Geoffrey, a merchant from the other side, found a vein of quartz which when pounded up and panned showed pieces of wire gold.

Creager Bros. have bought, and today are inventorying, the stock of general merchandise owned by G. F. Billings, and will conduct that business at this point.

Maj. Ernest Myers spent several days here examining his mining properties, returning to Albuquerque yesterday.

Messrs. Al. Coleman and A. H. Radway left here for Cerrillos yesterday. Mr. Coleman's many friends will be sorry to learn that he contemplates moving to old Mexico.

A. R. Casella is receiving a generous share of patronage at his artistic barber shop.

Judge Hancock and Pat. Gleason started back to Albuquerque by buggy yesterday. They were both greatly imbued with the grandeur of the scenery hereabouts.

Last night some of the boys came into Harding & Kline's and said that they had killed a bear. Tom Kline thought this was a bluff, and immediately announced that he would take all their bear meat at twenty-five cents per pound. When a few minutes later a train of burros arrived at his door with 1000 pounds of bear meat, and the boys wanted to know where to unload, Tom realized that $250 worth of bear meat was rather more than he needed in his bachelor apartments, and that he never cared much for bear meat, anyhow. So to square himself with the boys he commenced setting up refreshments to all the hunters, who, by the way, proved numerous. By this sociable turn nearly everybody in town got the idea that Kline killed the bear with his big shot gun. Bruin was a very large cinnamon, and had a good robe. Dr. Denny, Douglass, Bywaters, Pete Smith, Beech Twitcheil, Deutscher and Cy. Smith killed the brute, all firing at once.

Col. Doty, the veteran conductor on Hore's Kent line, left yesterday for his home in Texas.

Arthur Henry and Joe Barnett have opened up their amusement resort in good shape.

A number of ladies with their children, among whom were Mesdames Cochran, Williams, Marsh and Overhauls, left Cerrillos to-day for an outing on the James Mt. Overhauls will join them Sunday.

F. M. Croman is spending a week here at his mining property, and will return to Albuquerque Sunday.

Col. T. F. Moore passed through Bland to-day with a herd of work mules which he is taking to the mountain parks to recuperate.

Nice showers of rain have fallen here every afternoon for a week past.

The Hotel Albemarle had an opening dinner to-day, and this house is now open to the public, with its commodious rooms and well loaded tables.

Judge Collington is a little under the weather, but, if demanded, could throw the barpoon of justice with costs with an unerring aim.

Harry Cooper returned from the James hot springs with Trimble & Co.'s stage late yesterday afternoon. He states that the people of the springs are kicking about receiving their mails, and if they don't arrive more regularly between Albuquerque and the springs, they will send in a protest to the government asking the reason why. A Mexican takes the mail from here to the Indian village of Jemes, and another Mexican carries it from there to the springs. There is no earthly reason why the people of the springs should not receive their letters and papers regularly.

WORKS CLOSED.

An official order from General superintendent closed.

THE CITIZEN received this morning the following self-explanatory letter:

Albuquerque, July 17, 1894.
Richard English, Esq., General Master Mechanic, Atlantic & Pacific R. R. Co., Albuquerque, N. M.

Dear Sir: The unfortunate financial condition that the receivers of this company find themselves in as a direct result of the recent strike of the American Railway Union, makes it necessary that we close the works of the company at this point indefinitely.

While we have heretofore during the summer months, the interval of the lightest earnings and smallest business of the company, maintained our full working force, not only to assist our employees, but to lend permanency to a plant that has been a material factor in the growth of this city, we find ourselves at this juncture owing to the great falling off in revenue due to the enforced conditions above referred to, obliged to exercise the most rigid economy in all departments.

This course has only been determined upon after careful inquiry and investigation of the business present and prospective. The great loss sustained, necessitating the closing down of so many freight producing industries throughout the country and the general uncertainty surrounding the future, the resultant effects of the strike, forces the position we are at this time obliged to take.

It is my earnest hope that the circumstances necessitating this course will be of short duration, and that business will so far improve as to warrant the resumption of work in our shops here in the near future.

Yours Truly,
T. R. GABLE,
General Superintendent.

Alderman A. Simpler has received a letter from an older brother who resides near Allegheny, Pa., in which the latter states that during a recent flood in the Allegheny river all his improvements and belongings on his farm, embracing crops, cattle, horses, hogs, fences, barns, etc., were swept away by the water, leaving only his residence standing. The unfortunate gentleman has resided upon this farm during the past thirty years and had accumulated considerable live stock and made many substantial improvements. His loss is estimated at about $9,000.

A Missouri capitalist is buying up Albuquerque property at a lively rate, through a local representative, who can be seen at the court house interviewing sheriff Yrisarri and his chief deputy, Jesus Garcia, almost daily. It is learned, to the regret of this paper, that the Missourian the other day purchased a big slice of the Democrat office, and secured a certificate from the sheriff.

Col. Philip Mothersill, the manager of the Detroit Cattle and Irrigation company, headquarters on the Jornada de Muerto and shipping station at Engle, came up from the south last night and is around among his Albuquerque friends to-day. He made a pleasant call at THE CITIZEN office this afternoon, and ordered the paper sent to his address at Engle.

C. E. King, who recently had a run as express messenger on the Santa Fe road between this city and La Junta, is now employed at the depot house of the express company.

Postmaster Whitcomb informs THE CITIZEN that the trouble over the delivery of mail on the James and Chilli routes have been arranged and paper mails will hereafter be delivered promptly.

The El Paso Tribune says: John Harris, a negro, was yesterday convicted of vagrancy and given ten days in the jail. The officers believe that he is wanted by the Albuquerque authorities.

The infant daughter of A. R. Campbell, the Las Vegas buckboard man, died, of cholera infantum, and the child of Mrs. Cifre is very sick with the same deadly complaint.

On next Monday evening, July 23, a majority of the business houses of the city will close at 7 o'clock p. m. The move is a good one, and heartily endorsed.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Creamery House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for every kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by T. H. Burgess & Son, druggists.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's colic, cholera, fever, diarrhea remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the disease for which it is intended and he knows it. For sale by T. H. Burgess & Son.

Chas. L. Flynn, the Winslow general merchant, who was sent to the Prescott jail for "contempt of court," is now at liberty. He served four days in jail, and then took a wise course, by paying his fine
